THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1910.

For per chance, a copy of The Jeffersonian should fall into the hands of any who are in search of a location in the county—away from the city's dirt and smoke—a place where church, school and social advantages are given emphasis, and where you can live out your allotted number of years without pestilence of famine, with us and we will do thee good," we say, like one of the "do."

There are just a few who have permitted their subscriptions to lag behind. Don't do it. You will die one of these fine days and your family will want a column obituary published free, and then your daughter is soon to be married and you will expect your home paper to give her an Alice Roosevelt write-up, and all free. It always pays to be prompt in paying your subscription to your county paper. The above does not apply to those who borrow the paper each week. They are so mean they would be ashamed to face the editor and ask for a favor.

This week The Jeffersonian again starts publishing its additional two pages, which have been omitted during the dull summer months. Our friends—the merchants, are again consuming much space with the announcements of their special sales and it is necessary that we enlarge to get in all the news of the county. The Jeffersonian is one of the most popular county papers in the state and we are making more friends every day. Keep the good work going, talk your county paper up, answer the advertisements, get all your friends to subscribe, and soon we shall have a county paper that is as large as the Courier-Journal. We can do it with the help of all.

It is with much regret that we haven't the space this week to publish in full the article sent us by Mr. J. B. McFerran concerning the school at McNabb, Ill. You will find the first part of this article, written by Supt. Kerns, in today's issue, and the balance will be published next week. Do not fail to read the whole article in this week's and next week's papers. If Mr. Kerns' description of this model school in Indiana doesn't inspire our country people on to better things in Jefferson county, we shall be very much disappointed. It makes us want to be a boy again, so that we could look up a school like that and attend to get the training that would result in an ideal life. The article is composed of facts—not theories—and you should read it.

There should be no "faction" in any part of Jefferson county. Every improvement made enhances the value of all property in the whole county. We should live as one big family, and we believe few counties can show up more progressive and intellectual family. We have a few "black sheep" but they are fast passing away. When there is discord in the family there is little progress. When there is a united pull there is little we cannot accomplish. Envy, jealousy and hatred pull us all down. Envy is a cancer that gnaws at the heart and makes one and all disgruntled and unhappy. Jealousy makes one unfair in passing judgment; hatred does not pay even from a worldly point of view. Let us all be friends and pull together and show the world what a large and harmonious family can accomplish in building up our county—socially, intellectually, commercially and religiously.

VISITING

Is the Order of the Day Among the "Saints."

A. B. C. Writes Entertainingly of People You
Know Along R. F. D. Route
No. 19.

St. Matthews, Sept. 6.—Just as I made preparation for this, my monthly writing of events, my best seeing glasses fell in two. So, if this seems a one-sided view, you will understand the reason.

Judging from the reports sent in, almost everyone at the "Capitol" has visitors or is visiting, consequently this letter will be much like a "memoranda." Yet, they desire to know who is going or coming, and look to The Jeffersonian for information.

Mrs. Lytlebrown has gone to Nashville to visit her mother, Mrs. Lewis.

Mrs. Otto Bennett gave a dinner party in honor of Miss Bertha Geiss last Friday evening. It was a most enjoyable affair to all who were present.

Mrs. Bert Williams, from Logansport, Ind., spent last week with James Oechner.

Another interesting visitor was Miss Katie Binger, from Louisville, who spent the week with Mr. James H. Rudy.

We are enjoying the company of Mr. and Mrs. Collier from Prospect this last few days, as they have many friends at St. Matthews. Another great favorite among the "Saints" of this place is Mrs. Ben Lawrence, from Oklahoma. With these distinguished visitors we are happy folks, indeed, all intending to cap the climax with several days at the State Fair, where we expect to show off to advantage, giving them a chance to talk about our products, etc.

Mrs. Nelson Brown left for her home in Miss. after a visit to her mother, Mrs. Theodore Brown, near St. Matthews.

We are at present welcoming with much gusto Mrs. Geo. Brown, from Mayville, who will in the future make her home with her mother, Mrs. Theodore Brown.

We are glad also to report the return to our midst of Miss Martha Whitcomb.

Last, but not least, I have the liberty to report in a modest way (they won't have any bragging, or even the whole truth) a farewell dinner at Mr. R. O. Dorsey's in honor of Mr. Macendorf and party, from Atlanta, Ga. I am hampered as to explanation, but they know, and you know, too, from other recitals of the good times at this house, that the half is not told. It will mark a red letter day in our memory.

Along the nineteen line, potato hauling and competition of prices are the leading thoughts. Now, that we have been blessed with such a goodly quantity of grain, the second crop will be on the market before many weeks. Mr. Fred Rothenburger and Mr. H. Stutenburger are each building a very desirable house at Springdale. Quite a nice addition to our little burg. We will be a town bye and bye. A. B. C.

LONG RUN

Sept. 5.—Miss Lola Gregg, of Louisville, is a guest of her cousin, Miss Louie, at her home here.

Miss Ona Belle Demaree attended the Shelby county institute from her aunt's here last week and returned to her home Sunday.

Miss Jessie Smith started her school at Veechdale Monday, and will be with Mrs. Nannie Walters for the winter.

Miss Marguerite Neel returned to her home at Pinchville, after a stay of some days with her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Neel.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryan Cochran and children, of Middletown, and Mrs. Younger, of Louisville, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Morris Saturday.

Miss Addie Belle Potts, of Todd's Point, who was a recent visitor of Miss Mabel Smith, has returned to her home.

Miss Stella Webb, who underwent an operation for appendicitis recently at Norton Infirmary, Louisville, is improving rapidly.

Miss Maude Hagin, of Simpsonville, spent Wednesday with Mrs. A. B. Fulkerson.

Mr. Little and Mrs. Curtis had as their guests last week Mr. Muselman, of Louisville, and Mrs. Nathan Howell and children, of Shelbyville.

Mrs. Monty, of St. Louis, Missouri, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. Money and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Price at this place.

Mrs. Price had as her visitors Saturday Mrs. Hardin, Mrs. J. T. Morris and Miss Beatrice Morris.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Neel and Master Boyce Neel, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Parrott spent Tuesday with friends at Crestwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Talbot had as their guests Sunday their niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Long and children.

Mrs. S. G. Hagin was called to Kirksville, Mo., recently by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Etheridge Willis.

Rev. and Mrs. Joe Hagin and children, Hart and Lucy, returned to their home in Covington Friday, after spending a week with their parents.

The Season is Now at Hand

When you begin to think of what you will wear in the Fall and Winter, one of the most essential is your shoes. They add more to your appearance. Shoes are the most important to good health, and above all you will want shoes that will be comfortable and give you long, hard wear.

We have often told you of our "Stars," yet there is always something new, interesting and better about "Star Brand" Shoes each day. In the first place the makers, Roberts-Johnson & Rand Shoe Co., are making "Star" Shoes better every day. They are the only shoe makers advocating and trying to get Congress to pass a PURE SHOE LAW. "Star Brand" Shoes are ALL SOLID LEATHER and the makers want the people to know exactly what kind of shoes they are buying.

If you will let the "Star" that is on the heel of every "Star Brand" Shoe be your guide when buying Shoes, you can always feel assured that you are buying solid leather and the very best Shoes that can be made for the price.

AWARDS

At the Jefferson County Fair Last Week Printed in Full.

Rains Marred the Pleasure the Last Two Days, But Large Crowds Attended Each Day.

The tenth annual meeting of the Jefferson County Fair company came to a close last Friday after four days of a fine exhibition of fine stock, farm, garden, household and other products. On Thursday and Friday afterwards heavy rains marred the pleasure to some extent, but everybody seemed to have an enjoyable time. Not one complaint was registered against drinking or gambling this year, and it was the consensus of opinion that Jefferson county's fair has less of this than any fair in the state.

This year the admission was raised from 25 cents to 35 cents on account of the management adding several new features at a great increase in expenditure of money, one being the trapeze performers, who daily entertained the large crowds in front of the grandstand.

Robert McKinley and J. L. Simcoe were the leading winners with their horses. Mr. Simcoe showed six head of his Denmark and Chief saddle horses, all under four years old, and won seventeen premiums.

Following are the names of those winning premiums:

To Remains in Jefferson.

Mrs. D. L. Polk, who recently sold her country home to Mr. W. J. Sem-on, last week purchased the lot of Mr. J. C. Bruce in Livingston Heights and will shortly begin the erection of a handsome residence. This will be good news to the many friends here of Mrs. Polk and her talented daughter, Miss Mary, as they entered and they would leave Jefferson. The price paid for the lot was $1,500 and work will begin on the new house as soon as arrangements can be made.

So Welcome Home.

A very enjoyable occasion was the farewell dinner tendered Mr. Henry Frederick on last Wednesday, Aug. 31st, by his father, Mr. Wm. Frederick, and sisters, Misses Maggie and Lydia, at their country home at Jefferson. Mr. Frederick, who has been attending school at Annapolis, Maryland, for someone, came home on a visit and last Wednesday about seventy-five relatives and friends were invited to enjoy a sumptuous dinner and bid good-bye to the young naval cadet. A long table was spread in the grove near the Frederick home and was laden with everything good to eat from real barbecued lamb to delicious cakes and lemonade, and every one present spent a very pleasant time.

Enjoyable Business Meeting.

About eighteen members of the Epworth League formed a hayride party to the home of Mr. Charles Sibley near Fishersville last Saturday evening. After the regular business was transacted and the officers for the coming year were elected, Mr. Sibley and his mother served water-melon to the young folks and an enjoyable social hour was spent. Following are the names of the officers: President, Dr. W. F. Stucky; 1st vice president, Carl Hummel; 2nd vice president, Miss Mary Stucky; 3rd vice president, Miss Lucy Carpenter; 4th vice president, Chas. Sibley; secretary, Miss Mary Smith; treasurer, Miss Ethel Sprowl; Agent, Miss Pat Wischneck; editor of League paper, Carl Hummel. Installation services will take place Sunday evening, Sept. 18.

A Mountain Fower

BY ELDERE

An hour's rowing brought them to the river, where they went ashore, spent about half an hour wandering about, then again entered the boats and started upon the return trip. The bubble was not with them, as it had never landed, but continued down stream.

"Let us not wait for Lyon and Miss Floy," said Charlie. "We want to get back in time to have a game or two of tennis and croquet."

"No, indeed, we will not wait for them," said Ned. "It may not please Floy to start home until sunset."

Thus the Water-witch and the Stylus returned to Harbort, and they will leave the occupants there, while we follow the Bubble.

After had left the other boats far behind, Lyon ceased rowing, and let the little boat drift. Leaning over, he took one of Floy's hands, saying gently:

"Floy, I have been thinking of a plan which, if I follow it, will be much more convenient than the one we first determined upon. What is the use for us to return to Harbort, when it will be so much easier to continue down stream until we reach Carrollton, and there take a steamer to Louisville until I can have my home in Lexington prepared for you?"

Floy demurred at first, but after half an hour's coaxing she consented, thinking perhaps it would not be so hard to continue on the river as she had feared.

Upon reaching Carrollton, Lyon left Floy at the hotel while he went to ascertain at what time the steamer would be along. He found that the Madeline would touch there at about two o'clock.

Returning to the hotel, he found Floy in the ladies' parlor. He informed her at what time the steamer would be along and told her that he would leave her for an hour, as he had some very important business to attend to before leaving Carrollton.

As he left the parlor, he explored the lobby and found Floy upon a small table, and as Floy was standing with her back to him, he hastily seized the hat, wrapped it in a newspaper and put it upon the table.

"Sure, an' she has, Della Vincent," said Della.

"Very likely," agreed that innocent young man, "but never mind, I will purchase another one for you."

Free long boat whistle sounded on Lyon and Floy were about the Madeline, ploughing their way down the Ohio. There were a great many passengers and among the number was a pretty Irish woman accompanied by a sad-looking, pale-faced young girl, who deserted the immediately after Floy and Lyon came on board.

"Mrs. McLean, that beautiful girl who just came on board has a voice exactly like you," said the girl to the two left the deck.

"Sure, an' she has, Della Vincent," responded the Irish woman.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

By Della's Recall.

"Yes, Mrs. McLean, that young girl's voice is exactly like yours," said Della, "and she is just as sweet as yours."

"The black-headed apple!" said Della, "and she is the coldest white apple on board."

"Some intended victim," responded Della. "But Mrs. McLean, I am going to try to save her. Will you help me?"

"My darling, she might be his wife, and we might get insulted for our pains."

"No, no! I feel that she is no more his wife than I—no, nor as much," said Della, blushing. "She looks innocent in all probability she has persuaded her to come with him and intends to fool her with a mock marriage, as he did me."

"But, my darling, how are we to help her?" inquired doubtful Mrs. McLean.

"Only promise to help me and I will tell you my plans," replied Della.

"I promise if he think we won't get myself into trouble," said the old Irish woman, patting Della's face.

"Ah, Mrs. McLean, I would put myself to a great deal of trouble to save an innocent young girl from ruin, and I think you would too."

"Sure, an' I would,"
"Then, let us do our best," said Della earnestly. "But we must be very cautious about it. Walter Lyon must not see my face, and to avoid this, I will borrow your thick veil. When they leave the boat we will follow them. If they go to a hotel, we will take a room at the same house and adjoining the one he takes it possible. After that—"

Mrs. McLean listened with an incredulous light in her eyes until Della had finished.

"Great St. Patrick! ye don't mean to tell me ye are going to act in that high-handed manner?"

"Desperate cases require desperate means," replied Della, a determined light shining in her beautiful eyes.

"My good friend, you know my story. You know what I have suffered. Do you wonder that I should try to save another of my sex from such bitter humiliation and suffering as I have endured. There is another reason I wish to prevent this human sacrifice. It will be a glorious revenge to build Walter Lyon in his sinful designs, and my own honor will be vindicated."

When the boat landed at Louisville, Lyon and Floy went ashore, followed by Della and Mrs. McLean. A storm was brewing. The lovely August day was to end in a stormy darkness.

The lightning flashed and the thunder rolled, causing Floy to tremble and cling to the arm of her companion. The wind tore madly down the street and whistled Floy's curls about her face until she was almost blinded.

Fifteen minutes walk brought them to a dilapidated frame structure with the boarding house sign in front. It was growing quite dark and as Lyon hurried his companion up the steps and rang the bell, Della drew Mrs. McLean back into the shadow of the building to await further developments.

Presently a frizzle-headed maid put her head out the door and demanded what was wanted.

"We wish to procure a night's lodging," answered Lyon in a low tone, and they were admitted.

Five minutes later a peal of the bell again brought the maid to the door.

"Sure, an' it is lodgin' ye want? she demanded of the two women who stood upon the portico.

"Yes, we wish to procure a room," said Della.

"Sure, then, I don't think you will. We have just let the last two vacant rooms."

A look of keen disappointment crossed Della's face.

"Oh, don't you think you could manage in some way to let us have a room, just tonight?" asked Della, earnestly.

"Sure, mum, there is one room—but," and here she put her finger upon her lips and looked very mysterious.

"Well," inquired Della. "But it is haunted," continued the maid, "an' we seldom lodge any one in it, but if ye are a mind to take it ye are welcome."

"O, yes it will do quite well," said Della eagerly.

"An'" continued the maid, as she led the way up a long flight of stairs, "ye need be much afraid of the night as the two rooms next to it are occupied. A gentleman an' lady came in a few moments ago an' took 'em."

"Then I suppose if the ghost attacks us we will have to scream and they will hear us."

"Yes," said the maid, "for the walls are quite thin an' ye can hear any one talk if ye listen."

Della could hardly suppress her delight at these words. As soon as the two found themselves in their room Della hastily crossed the room and laid her ear to the thin board partition.

All was still and Della was beginning to grow impatient when she heard a door open and a well-known voice say:

"Well, my darling, I am ready to go for the minister. Be ready by the time I get back."

"You won't be gone long, Walter?"

"If an hour; perhaps not longer."

started to hear the knock upon her door.

"Who is there?" she inquired.

"It is one of the maids," answered Della.

"But didn't ring for you," said Floy.

"No, but there are some things in your room I wish to get."

Floy reluctantly opened the door and admitted the girl and Mrs. McLean. No words were wasted, but Mrs. McLean's portmanteau arms suddenly closed about the girl's slight figure and a handkerchief saturated with chloroform was pressed to her nostrils.

She struggled for a moment, then lay perfectly quiet upon Mrs. McLean's broad bosom.

"Poor girl," said Della. "It seems too bad to treat her thus but we had no time to waste in words and it would probably have taken two hours to convince her of Walter Lyon's perfidy."

Mrs. McLean carried Floy into the room and laid her upon the bed.

"Now," said Della, giving a note to Mrs. McLean, "take this and give it into the hands of the Rev. Holmes, number 128, East Second street. It is but three doors from this house. Make haste and tell Mr. Holmes to come immediately."

Mrs. McLean departed and Della hurriedly exchanged her dress for Floy's. In a few moments Mrs. McLean had returned and together she and Della went to Floy's room to await the coming of Walter Lyon. The room was large and the small lamp that burned dimly upon a table in one corner lighted the gloom about the coming of Walter Lyon.

We Bought the McGinn & Honaker Shoe Stock At a Great Price-Sacrifice And Are Selling It The Same Way

The well known Fourth-avenue firm of McGinn & Honaker, retiring from business, closed out their entire stock to us. This action was unexpectedly taken AFTER their fall stocks HAD BEEN RECEIVED, and so most of these goods are BRAND NEW and up to date. It is well known that this house carried none but HIGH-CLASS goods and catered to the very fashionable trade. Such brands as Garside & Son's ladies' shoes, Dunlap's, Hurley's and others' men's fine shoes and Baker's shoes for children.

Boys' Barrot Farm.

Rev. G. G. Berrot Saturday sold his farm on the Bardstown road, near Thixton, to C. D. Evans for $7,000. The sale was made by E. R. Sprowl, the local real estate man. For the last two or three years Mr. Evans has resided in Jefferson town and is a citizen we regret to lose. He is a well known lumber man, buying timber lands in all parts of the state. He will remove to his new home in a short time.

Colored Fair in Full Blast.

The Colored Jefferson County Fair started yesterday at the white fairgrounds with great prospects for a successful fair. The president, Ed. Taylor, and secretary, Warren LaRue, have been busy for some time making all necessary arrangements, and a great time is expected. Today there will be some fine horse shows and trotting races. Tomorrow there will also be some fine horse shows and special premiums for cattle. The last day, Saturday, promises to be the most successful. There will be special prizes for mules, roadsters, combined and general utility horses, best lady and gentleman riders, trotting and trotting races, etc. At 3 o'clock the grand cake walk, which always attracts many white people to the colored fair, will take place. Everybody who can spend and help the colored people out in this a most worthy enterprise.

CERTIFICATES

Of the Second Class Do Not Entitle Teachers To Teach in Schools Having Seventy-Five or More Pupils.

In answer to a letter of County Superintendent Orville J. Stivers, to the State Superintendent, the latter upholds his action in urging the chairmen of the educational divisions of the county to not employ any teachers holding certificates of the second class in schools having seventy-five or more pupils. Recently contracts were refused several teachers who had already been employed, and a general complaint was made. The following letter is self-explanatory and endorses the action of the superintendent and the chairmen:

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 30, 1910.—Supt. Orville J. Stivers, Louisville, Ky. Dear Mr. Stivers: I have your letter dated Aug. 25th. The attorney general has held and I have made a ruling that no teacher holding a second class certificate shall be permitted to teach in any school having more than 75 pupils.

I am informed that the State Inspector and Examiner will begin checking the books and records of all County Superintendents within a short time. Should he find that you have paid the school fees illegally, he will ask you to return this money to the state.

Very truly yours,
ELEANOR BENDERSTEN,
Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The Jeffersonian and the hustling merchants' joint Piano Voting Contests are creating great interest. Thirty-six active candidates are now in the field, each with an eye on one of the piano prizes that will go to the candidate polling the greatest number of coupon votes by the end of the contest.

Elsewhere in this issue appears a list of candidates with their standing. This list, however, don't tell the entire story, but shows the candidates' standing as it should be if all the votes collected had been turned in—which they were not. Fully one quarter of the candidates entered are holding back their votes for the presumed purpose of keeping the other candidates in darkness as to their correct standing—shortly there will be a loud explosion and several candidates who are resting on their oars will wake up to find themselves among the "also rans."

According to the official count made Tuesday over 100,000 Coupon Votes were cast during the past week. If all votes had been polled the total would have at least been doubled. Some few changes appear in the standing of the candidates. They are worth noting.

The Contest is making a lot of new friends for The Jeffersonian and the merchants giving the contests; incidentally it is bringing in a new business. This new business is, of course, welcome, but better than the business itself, is the knowledge that Jefferson county isn't so slow after all. The interest taken that Jefferson county and the support given the candidates show that the people of Jefferson county are commercially alive and true blue and all that they want in order to prove their take-hold-and-push-spirit is an opportunity. This is the spirit that means more business and money in the banks for everybody. And if this same spirit is shown in all undertakings, public and private, that made by our people, a richer and happier community is the sure and certain result.

Quite a number of the contestants are under the impression that the piano is the only prize offered, when in fact there are five prizes offered in each contest—

- First—$350 Krause Piano.
- Second—$350 Duo.
- Third—$250 Due Bill.
- Fourth—$240 Due Bill.
- Fifth—$230 Due Bill.

The piano is valued at $350 and if you win one of these Due Bills it will simply mean a credit of just that much upon the piano in case you desire to purchase it. If you do not, you may sell the Due Bill to some person who does want to buy a piano. The Due Bills are certainly worth working for. Don't overlook that fact.

Voting coupons can not be purchased at any price other than free coupons appearing every Thursday in this paper. The only ways by which piano votes can be obtained are through subscriptions to The Jeffersonian, 1,000 with each subscription, and through either of the merchants giving the contests, who are giving 200 votes on each dollar purchase from their general stock of goods and 500 from their new novelty department.

Sample copies of The Jeffersonian are furnished upon application. Subscriptions will be accepted at either of the above named merchant's stores, who are our authorized agents. Send all coupons and votes to the merchants—not The Jeffersonian, but send subscriptions either to the stores or to this office, where votes will be issued.

A Special Invitation to the Readers of this Paper

The Kentucky State Fair will be held at Louisville during week of September 12th to 17th.

It will be a great Fair—everybody will want to attend. Everybody who does attend will be delighted with the exhibition which is calculated to be the finest and best from an educational and entertaining standpoint that was ever made in Kentucky.

During the State Fair week our store will also make an exhibition that will interest you. The exhibition will consist of the new fashions in ready-to-wear garments and in piece-goods that have been produced and approved for the Fall and Winter 1910-1911 Seasons.

We take this method to extend to you an invitation to see this exhibition. At the same time we use this source to invite you to our store whenever you come to Louisville. Whether you purchase anything or not it will please us to see you. We have at your disposal a modernly equipped toilet room where you can refresh yourself after traveling, a comfortably furnished resting room where you can read, rest, meet your friends, fulfill engagements and we have made arrangements to check your baggage and bundles at our store without any cost to you.

Pale-Faced Women

You ladies, who have pale faces, sallow complexions, dark circles under eyes, drawn features and tired, worn-out expressions, you need a tonic.

The tonic you need is Cardui, the woman's tonic. It is the best tonic for women, because its ingredients are specifically adapted for women's needs. They act on the womanly organs and help to give needed strength and vitality to the worn-out womanly frame.

Cardui is a vegetable medicine. It contains no minerals, no iron, no potassium, no lime, no glycerin, no dangerous, or habit-forming drugs of any kind.

It is perfectly harmless and safe, for young and old to use.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"After my doctor had done all he said he could for me," writes Mrs. Wm. Hilliard, of Mountainburg, Ark., "I took Cardui, on the advice of a friend, and it helped me so much. Before taking Cardui, I had suffered from female troubles for five years, but since taking it, I am in good health. I think there is some of the best advice in your book that I ever saw." Your druggist sells Cardui. Try it.
